

Kathleen Donnelly -

After a ten-year career as a CPA/management consultant at Price Waterhouse and then Accenture, Kathleen Donnelly traded her financial credentials for a career in Art Sales and Consulting. She opened her own gallery in Rumson, NJ in 2001 after having had numerous art shows at her previous homes in Atlanta (1992-96), San Francisco (1996-2000) and Rumson. Although she is self-trained in art sales and in running a gallery, her love for art has kept the business thriving in this wonderful arts community. Beauregard is known for "bringing art home", i.e., art is taken home on a trial basis, and they encourage homeowners to "start with the art" when planning a renovation or interior design.

Denise Weiner -

Denise Weiner's journey from Corporate America to artist and writer began almost twenty-five years ago with a watercolor class at a spa. Following thirty years in communications, marketing, and international business, she learned that art and play enhance professional and personal life and keeps one healthy. In 2013, Denise published her first book, "Art Lessons from Grandma" which illustrates how the power of art and creativity can teach important life lessons. She has two additional books in the works, "The Daisy and the Sparrow", a modern-day fable about finding the place where you belong and "Rainbows and Unicorns", a children's story about a small girl who has big dreams of creating a world that is inclusive and beautiful. Denise was one of the founding members of the Canterbury Art Show in 2012 and is excited to be a juror for the 10th anniversary of this wonderful show.
